Novello's Cheap Music.—The general complaint that "printed music is too dear," was so well founded as to induce me, in the year 1849, to reduce the prices of my publications full 50 per cent., and the same scale has been adopted in pricing all the subsequent additions to my Catalogue; these reduced prices are marked in plain figures. Certain Music-sellers, in town and country, appear to think that this concession to the public interferes with their interests, not perceiving that an increased consumption more than makes up to them for the change; and they interfere in various ways to deprive the public of the benefit, by stating "Novello's Editions are out of print," or trying to sell other copies marked at a higher price, and sometimes even by altering the Prices printed on my publications.

THE PUBLIC FOR THEIR OWN PROTECTION

Should therefore:—

- 1st.—Insist on having "Novello's Editions," which are always in print, and can be obtained by every respectable Music-seller or Bookseller in town and country.
- 2nd.—Compare the price they pay with the Catalogue prices.
- 3rd.—If other methods fail, address their orders direct to
The Public's obedient Servant, J. Alfred Novello,
69, Dean-street, Soho, or 24, Poultry, London.
